Home is where the art is!

Didsbury Open House Arts Trail

DAF 2015, 20-28 June

Fancy a bit of Liszt in the living room, Beckett in the bathroom, or – weather permitting – Pinter on the patio?

Didsbury residents are invited to transform their homes into temporary art galleries and performance spaces during Didsbury Arts Festival 2015 (20-28 June).

As part of this year's festival programme, organisers want to include a trail of art works, music and performance in people's houses during the closing weekend (27 and 28 June) of DAF. They are asking Didsbury home owners to open their doors to festival goers to provide some of the artistic highlights of the nine-day community celebration.

DAF Director, Daniel Williamson, explained: 'If you are an artist based in Didsbury, with a studio you would like to open to the public, we would love to hear from you. The same goes for any musicians or performers who would like to host an event in their own living rooms. Or maybe you are not an artist yourself, but would like to open up your house and host someone else's art work or performance? If so, please get in touch now.'

Added Daniel: 'This is another first for DAF and a fascinating opportunity for artists, residents and festival goers to join together and celebrate both Didsbury and the arts in a truly unique way!'

Any Didsbury home owners wishing to be involved in this unique project should let organisers know by 31 March.
